THE VALLEY OF THE PENOBSCOT.

RECOLLECTIONS AND REMINISCENCES OF MEN AND THINGS, AFTER FORTY YEARS.

BY JOSEPH TREAT.

To the young man just entering upon the early years of his manhood, it is difficult to carry forward by a stretch of the imagination, the term of his life for a period of forty years; so uncertain does its continuance for any defined period constantly appear; and the chances that he may not reach a period of even the greatest number of years in advance of the present time, is so great, that his future years, whether they be few or many, are things of the greatest doubt and uncertainty. If, at the age of twenty-one years, he could have the course of his future life placed plainly before him, with all its possible successes and failures, he might step out upon the threshold with a degree of confidence in his ability to meet the oncoming responsibilities, with a manly and courageous heart, and a fore-determined purpose to play well his part in the great drama of life;—but, to peer through the darkness and mists of the future, with no certain and unerring guide, and with no moment of time beyond the present, which he can call his own, how can he hope to cope with the obstacles which beset his way, and in the end arrive at a successful and satisfactory result, after a struggle of forty years. A prospective view of life is a thing of faith and hope mingled with doubt and fear, and has no certain anchor upon which to fasten as it pushes out its frail bark upon the undulating and uncertain waters of the future; but, to the man who has passed over and surmounted the difficulties which have beset him during a course of forty years, how different is the retrospective, in whose clear light he takes a view of the past, from the dim and misty prospective in which he set out on his journey. The period from which he dates his experience seems as if it were but yesterday, so swiftly has time sped its course, and the trials though great and seemingly difficult to overcome while passing through the agony incident to their infliction have now diminished to utter insignificance. Great mountains were they then, but now in the retrospective, they have dwindled to the smallest possible mole hills. Those years are a vast plain, upon whose surface all inequalities have been made to disappear, and every object on which the memory fastens stands out in clearest outline, and at every stage of the journey, familiar faces and places with their attending surroundings and incidents, may be called up at will. Let us now, for a little time, glance over this great plain, with varied and undulating surface, with hill and dale and mountain in accord, contributing each its part in the production of a landscape, upon which the memory in its boundless capacity, may fasten, "of things new and old." There are in every man's life, times and seasons upon which he delights to dwell, and which never can be erased from his memory. To a few persons and things intimately connected with my own life history while a resident of the Valley of the Penobscot, forty and more years ago, I now desire to allude. I trust I shall be pardoned for such reference to myself as it may be necessary to make, while speaking of others, by reason of my intimate connection with the persons and things of which I shall speak.

GRANDEUR AND BEAUTY OF SCENERY.

To a person who has never before visited the Penobscot River and Valley, a sail by steamer upon the river from its entrance into the broad bay at Rockland, in its entire distance to Bangor, is a series of surprises; the scenery is hardly surpassed anywhere, at once, in its beauty and grandeur. The Hudson, far famed for its grand and beautiful scenery, has nothing which can surpass that to be seen upon the Penobscot. The traveler, whether on an errand of business intent, or on a journey for pleasure or recreation bent, cannot resist the impulse to wonder and admire as he passes on his way, on his journey by steamer from Boston to Bangor. He arrives at Rockland in the early morning, and after a short stop is again on his way; passing out of the harbor into the bay, he soon rounds the outmost point of land which projects itself into the bay just before the entrance into Camden harbor. Here is opened to his view a scene of picturesque beauty; the magnificent stretch of waters forming the harbor and bay extend to the high point of land at Northport, cutting off the view of the grand stretch of waters beyond. In the foreground may be seen the quiet and beautiful village of Camden, nestled about the water side, and stretching up on the plateau towards the base of the grand mountain in the background; while in the greater distance may be seen other mountains stretching off in endless variety, towards the north and east. Upon the rugged sides of "Megunticook" may be seen patches of herbage or clusters of trees of stunted growth, while, at and near its top the bare, brown surface of the grand boulders which constitute the woof and web of its structure, overhang and overlap each other. Altogether there is much in the scene to inspire emotions of pleasure in viewing the handiwork of man, as seen in the charming residences and quiet homes of the dwellers in this model village, and reverence for the great Creator of the grand and beautiful scenery so profusely outspread to his view; but the steamer will not tarry for the traveller to indulge in his exuberance of delight at the inspiring scene, though he may, if not a stranger to this town, stop to drop a tear, as he passes on, at the remembrance of those who were dear to him in life, but now lie embowered by the shrubbery in the near cemetery on the hill overlooking the village. He is now on his way and the steamer is soon rounding the point at Northport, and in full view of the grand scenery in and around Belfast bay—the grand stretch of waters extending to Castine on the right and on the left, with Belfast in the near distance, soon to be reached. Here a scene of bustle and activity occurs seldom seen elsewhere upon the route. It would almost seem that a large portion of the population of the city had come out to meet friends, or receive freight upon the arrival of the boat. Belfast, for beauty or grandeur of natural scenery cannot be compared with Camden, but is nevertheless a city of much interest and beauty; the semi-circular line of its harbor, together with the elevated and rolling surface upon which it is located add greatly to its beauty and convenience as a place of residence; the model (many of them palatial,) residences of her citizens, lend a charm to the situation, hardly less than those just described as belonging to Camden; but, in less time than is required for the penning of these lines, the boat is again on her way and Belfast is left far in the distance, and is rapidly approaching Searsport; a commercial and ship-building village, without special natural attractions, the chief interest centering in the thrift and enterprise of her citizens. Searsport, in turn, is seen only in the distance, and the traveler is far on his way towards Fort Point, a place dear to the heart of every true citizen of the Penobscot, for the part it bore in the defense of the early settlers of the valley. But for the thoughtful and timely act of the General Court of Massachusetts directing the building of a fort at this point, under the supervision of Governor Pownall, in whose honor it was named, settlement could hardly have prospered; and the ground upon which the towns and cities now stand might possibly have remained for many years later in the history of the region, an unbroken wilderness—but, the traveler sees not much there to interest or attract—a hotel and some cottages affording about all of interest to be seen though there is somewhat of natural beauty in the surroundings. The boat is now well on her way towards Bucksport, a thrifty ship-building and commercial town, at an abrupt turn in the river seeming to the traveler, as he approaches, to be the end, both of the river and of his journey. Here another scene of bustle and activity occurs while the landing of passengers and freight is progressing, when soon the boat is again on her way, and making an abrupt turn to the left, puts out upon a broad expanse of waters, known as "Marsh bay," with Frankfort, somewhat obscured by the intervening forest growth at the left, with Mount Waldo rearing her well rounded and majestic form heavenward as a background to the scene, and Winterport in the distance to the right standing out, grand and beautiful for situation. Intermediate between the two is the spot now made desolate by the destructive element of fire, which once was the centre of life and activity incident to the conduct of a large business in the manufacture of lumber in its various forms. This is the spot where the extensive steam mills so long operated by the late Hon. Theophilus Cushing, were located. The traveler, if informed, as he passes the now desolate spot, may well drop a tear as he thinks of the annihilation of so much wealth by the fiery element—and of the noble, generous man who once directed this great business enterprise with so much energy and skill; but whose life, once so full of kindly sympathy for his fellows, has now gone out, and perished from the earth forever.

After a short stop at Winterport the boat is again on her way, and in a little time makes her usual stop at Hampden, but as the landing is quite distant from the village, there is little to attract the notice of the traveler, and he will perhaps remain within the saloon and await the time consumed by the stop, with some degree of impatience, knowing, as he does, that the next stop will be at Bangor, the point of his destination, in which more than aught else the interest of his journey now centres. He is, however, not long delayed for the boat is soon again on her way, and after a short run through a portion of the river not particularly attractive in itself, (though the outlying surroundings are sufficiently picturesque and beautiful), he is permitted to catch an outline of the goodly city of Bangor in the distance. The boat moves steadily on, and after a little time is approaching the place of her landing. Amid bustle and excitement the passenger is permitted to land and stand once more upon terra firma, though somewhat unsteady upon his feet, with the rolling of the sea in his head. Our traveler shall be permitted to take a hack for his hotel, after which he may brush off the dust of travel and take rest and refreshment until the morrow. Having thus rested and refreshed himself our traveler will naturally seek to inform himself as to the situation and surroundings of the city in which he has come to sojourn for a little time. He will, not unlikely, stroll through the principal streets, and observe the active, stirring citizens as they move about in vehicles of various kinds, or on foot, intent upon the business of the hour. He will take a glance at the stores and offices, as he passes, to observe the peculiar activity manifest in all departments of business. He will, perhaps, engage a "turn-out" and drive to the dam and water works at Treat's Falls, and, thence on to Bangor's beautiful and unique "City of the dead," at Mount Hope. He will admire the simple beauty of some of the monuments which mark the last resting place of many of Bangor's most illustrious citizens; and will pause and seek to decipher the epitaph upon some stone marking the place of interment of some of the old families numbered among the first settlers of the infant community from which has grown the enterprising and populous city. If, upon these stones he shall decipher the name of some one of his own ancestors, he will pause for a moment, and with reverence in his heart thank God for so noble and self-sacrificing an ancestry. Thence he will move on to view other, and more modern inscriptions upon stones reared over the remains of deceased friends by loving hearts and hands. Having seen all, he will possibly feel impelled to continue on his way, and will leave the cemetery and drive on over "the plains" and visit the extensive lumber mills at Veazie, (Corporation Mills,) where he will view the stupendous water power there brought into subjection, and made subservient to the uses and will of man; having viewed these he will feel impelled to move on a few miles farther and observe the immense display of water power to be seen at Orono, and to wonder at the vast amount of business done at the numerous mills upon the river at that point. Our traveler, having advanced so far, will probably deem it worth his while to continue his journey yet a few miles further on, and witness the great water power at Great Works, as he passes on the opposite side of the river, on his way to Old Town, arriving at which latter place he will be impressed more than yet he has been with the greatness of the water power of the Penobscot, to be found lying between the dam at Treat's Falls and the upper falls at Old Town and Milford. Our traveler, having seen so much of interest, may now turn his face towards the city which he left in the morning, and before the shadows of evening have fairly set in, he will have returned to his hotel, satisfied and delighted with his day's travels and observations, and will retire to his rest with a better and larger conception of the beauty, grandeur and utility of the noble Penobscot than had ever before entered his mind; though somewhat weary he will rest better for the new inspiration he has received from the travels and observations of the day just closed; rested and invigorated, he will arise on the morrow with a keener and more decided relish for the grand and beautiful in nature; his impulse will be to seek to find an elevation from which he may observe the city and its superb surroundings. If he inquires how, and where, to obtain this observation, he will be directed to Thomas' Hill (Mount Thomas) and, possibly some courteous gentleman to whom he speaks will kindly offer to accompany him and will invite him to a seat in his conveyance; thus seated, he will drive to the "Hill" and display to the astonished vision of our traveler the boundless beauties of the magnificent landscape opened to his view. At his feet lies the city, spread out in every direction, with its neat, chaste homes; its extensive business warehouses and manufacturing establishments; its numerous and stately church edifices with their towers, domes, and steeples reaching up towards the heavens; its numerous school houses for the education of the young, and its charitable institutions;—altogether forming a group worthy the pencil of the painter, and of which the thrifty and enterprising citizens may well be proud;—the silvery thread of the "Kenduskeag" may be seen winding its course through the centre of the city, and cutting it in twain, and joining the great river beyond, upon whose bosom rest the sails and commerce of many cities. Over and beyond, to the east and north, lie spread out hill and valley, in wondrous variety and beauty; and should it chance that the observation shall be taken at or near the setting of the sun, a halo of beauty will rest upon the transcendent landscape. The high range of hills beyond serve to furnish a background of superior beauty; to the west and south lie spread out to view wide stretches of hill and dale, dotted with farms and substantial homes, denoting comfort, and almost luxury on every hand;—our traveler having seen so much of interest and beauty, will now be content to return to his hotel, and after some hours or days spent in rest and recreation, he will take his departure from the scenes amid which he has found so much delight. He will possibly continue his journey to other and more remote parts, to view the delightful scenery of Eastern Maine. We will wish him a pleasant journey, and happiness and delight, as he passes to other scenes to whatever point he may direct his steps. If he shall turn his face towards the south and east and visit Maine's great seaside summer home at Mount Desert, or shall turn towards the north and west and for a time sojourn at Moosehead Lake, or under the shadow of "Katahdin," he cannot in either case go far amiss, and we will wish him a God-speed, and good-by. Having thus seen our traveler in his journeyings on the bay, the river and the land, enjoying with him the pleasures of the scenes through which he passes until he is lost to our view, we may now well turn to other themes.

In my late, previous article, I referred at some length to the merchants of Bangor, omitting reference to any other class of citizens. I now desire to speak, in brief, of some in other spheres. Of professional men, lawyers, doctors and preachers, there was at the time of which I write a generous supply; of these I will not speak at length, but will mention a few only among the clergymen of the time.

OLD-TIME PREACHERS.

Rev. Swan L. Pomeroy had occupied for many years the pulpit of the First Parish Congregational church and was at the time, perhaps, the best known and most popular preacher then settled in Bangor, but having received a call to engage in another and most important work, he resigned his pastorate and removed his residence to Boston. Mr. Pomeroy was a man of fine personal presence, and a powerful and impressive preacher, and his removal from Bangor was regarded as a public calamity.

Rev. John Maltby presided over the second Congregational church (known as the Hammond street church), for many years, and was a man highly esteemed by the citizens at large, and beloved by his own people. He was a man of urbane manners and courtly presence, and withal a ripe scholar and a true Christian gentleman.

Rev. Prof. George Sheppard was engaged in the Theological Seminary, and was a man of modest and unassuming manners, and had attracted little notice as a preacher, until he was invited to minister upon the establishment of a semi-missionary effort located at the Market hall on Kenduskeag Bridge, which proved to be the initiatory step looking towards the organization of a third Congregational church, and out of which has grown the present prosperous Central Congregational church. Prof. Sheppard was a preacher of great energy and power, as was soon proved upon his engaging in this work. The attention of the public was soon drawn to his ministrations and it was not long before large audiences thronged the hall. He was endowed with a wonderful power of illustration, and held his audiences spell-bound. He was possessed of a fine voice, deep and powerful; and in his outbursts of eloquence would electrify and startle his hearers. His work in this field was continued until the sweeping away of the market and hall by the great flood of 1846.

Rev. Jeremiah Chaplin was settled over the First Baptist church for several years, until A. D. 1845, when from delicate health he felt constrained to resign his charge, and accepted a call to the pastorate of the Roger Williams Baptist church at Providence, R. I. Dr. Chaplin was a scholarly and eloquent preacher, and did excellent service for the churches over which he was called to preside. His delicate health rendered it impossible for him, in later years, to assume and perform the duties of the pastoral office, and he was constrained to devote himself largely to literary pursuits; after a long and useful life. He has recently deceased at the advanced age of seventy-two years.

The Second Baptist church was not organized until the year in which Dr. Chaplin resigned his pastorate over the First church, Rev. Charles G. Porter being its first pastor. Of others, successors of the worthy men of whom I have now spoken, I may speak at a future time.

THE NATIONAL CREDIT IS NO MORE solidly founded than the reputation of Benson's Capcine Plasters. They are known, appreciated and used everywhere in America—its hospitals and its homes. Physicians, pharmacists and druggists affirm that for promptness of action, certainty and range of curative qualities they are beyond comparison. Once used their unequalled excellence recommends them. The public are again cautioned against the cheap, worthless and shameless imitations offered by mendacious parties under the guise of similar-sounding names, such as "Capsicin," "Capsicum," "Capucin" "Capsicine," etc. Ask for Benson's, buy of respectable druggists only, and make a personal examination. The genuine has the "Three seals" trademark and the word "Capcine" cut in the centre. SMW

How to laundry linen as it is done in Troy, N. Y., has been kept a secret long enough, it can and should be done in every family. The Elastic Starch is the only starch in the United States that is put up by men who have a practical knowledge of the laundry profession. It requires no cooking; keeps the iron from sticking and linen from blistering while ironing, and gives shirts, cuffs and collars that stiffness and beautiful polish they have when new, which everybody knows, keeps them clean twice as long. MONDAY, MAY 3, 1886.

Congressman Singleton, of Mississippi, has become so impatient at Davis' utterances that he says: "If he says anything that is unpatriotic he ought to be hung before he leaves town."

It is fortunate for Davis that this suggestion was not put in practive, as his tour would have terminated at his first stopping place.

As the Democrats are lauding the decision of the House in the Hurd-Romeis contested election case as an unusual exhibition of non-partisanship, Ex-Congressman Calkins' showing of how the Republican House in 1883 decided seven contested seat cases in favor of the Democrats is timely.

The Boston Post excuses the disgraceful performance over Jefferson Davis and his treasonable remarks in Montgomery, and denounces the course of the loyal men of the North who protested against the spirit manifested there as "idiotic sensitiveness," in the same article. The Post is determined to merit the coveted title of Administration organ.

The desperation of the cause of the free traders is shown in the plaintive appeal of the New York Herald which says "manufacturers must speak if they want a new tariff." Manufacturers and laborers have spoken very emphatically on this subject. They have said "let the tariff alone," and Mr. Morrison and his followers would do well to accept their advice. The free traders must go.

The nomination of Mr. Pollard as Associate Judge of Montana has been unanimously rejected by the Senate. Pollard is a worthy representative of the reform policy now in force, having swindled a poor orphan girl out of the value of a note. She went to him for advice when he informed her that the note was practically worthless and then purchased it for a mere song and collected it himself. This is another appointment that should afford the reform friends of the Administration infinite satisfaction.

The New York Evening Post is rather staggered by the revolt of the Springfield Republican. The latter paper practically pronounces the Cleveland Administration a failure after one year's trial and the Post is afraid to deny the statement, although it devotes nearly a column of space to a maudlin review of the Republican's article. Of the "reform" organs the Boston Herald is about the only one left that has yet to utter its first word of censure as regards the course of the Administration.

The Commercial has at last given the call for the Democratic State Convention a prominent position in its columns and refers to it editorially as follows:

The absence of any reference to the burning question of postoffices in the call for the Democratic State Convention is in the nature of evidence that the rhetorical portion of the document was not the composition of Chairman Brown.

Possibly the Boston Globe will discover some indication of Democratic harmony in this reference to the chairman of the State Committee by a party organ.

The question of who shall succeed the late Hon. Edmund Wilson on the Democratic National Committee is now attracting considerable attention in Democratic circles. The names of Messers. Brown, Sweat and Bass are mentioned in connection with the vacancy. It is safe to say that Brown will not get the honor, if the last two named can prevent it and it is equally certain that if Brown fails he will leave no stone unturned to prevent either of these competitors getting the prize. The settlement of this question will not tend to increase the harmony in the Democratic party.

The glorification of the "lost cause" and the utterances of "ex-President Davis" are giving the Democratic politicians no little uneasiness. For years now the Democratic papers have denounced any agitation of such dastardly outrages as that which recently occurred at Carrollton, Miss., as waving the "bloody shirt" and an attempt on the part of the Republicans to arouse sectional animosities at a time when the people of the South were seeking to bury all memories of the past. The recent demonstrations in the South over the triumphal tour of Jefferson Davis, the display of that emblem of treason, the stars and bars, and the enthusiastic reception accorded the odious sentiments of the ex-Chief of the Confederacy, show that the people of that section have not buried the memories of the past; that they have forgotten nothing unless indeed it is the essential fact that the late rebellion resulted in a Union victory rather than the triumph of the cause which they are now glorifying. The Democratic readers realize the significance of this demonstration and fear its result upon the campaign this fall.

Mr. Morrison and his free trade colleagues are losing confidence in the success of their scheme notwithstanding the fact that the President has used his influence in its behalf. A Washington despatch to the Boston Journal says: One of the reasons assigned for this want of confidence is given in the following statement from a Democratic protectionist. He said: Randall has called on the President within the last few days and had a fatherly talk with him. Randall did not mince matters, but laid before Cleveland his position in the fight and gave him the names of the Democratic members of the House who would vote with him against the bill. He told the President that any further interference in the matter would only hurt the Administration, because defeat was certain, and it would not do for the Democratic Administration to father a defeat by a Democratic House. He explained that the free wool clause had hermetically sealed the Ohio Democrats against it and brought with them many others. The President saw the logic and said that henceforth he would keep his "hands off" and stand aloof in the fight. This satisfied Mr. Randall and he left. A large wool manufacturer in Baltimore recently told a member of the House that a passage of the bill meant a transfer of the capital now employed in this trade to Berlin and Leipsic. "The capital will go," he said, "but the labor cannot, and hence that vast number of people now given work here will be idle." The impression is growing among the members that the proper thing to be done with the bill will be to order it recommitted to the Ways and Means Committee with instructions to the committee to strike out the tariff portion and report the administrative part of the bill.

The Boston Herald asserts that George Washington was a Mugwump and points to the cherry tree story in support of its statement. If Washington was a Mugwump simply because he couldn't tell a lie the creed of that party has degenerated sadly in the years that have elapsed since his day. Now the professional Mugwump is not expected to tell anything else.

Mr. Burleigh not a Candidate.

The Lewiston Journal having published a despatch to the effect that State Treasurer Burleigh would be a possible candidate before the Republican Convention, Mr. Burleigh sends that paper the following contradiction of the report:

AUGUSTA, April 30, 1886.

To the Editor of the Lewiston Journal:—

I am not and shall not be even a possible candidate for Governor at the approaching Republican Convention to be holden in your city. I hasten to make this statement that no false impression may obtain in any quarter from the telegram which appeared in your columns last evening.

Very sincerely yours,
E. C. BURLEIGH.

The Villainous Mail Service

The manner in which the United States mails are treated by English tramp steamers to which they are committed by Postmaster General Vilas is related in a recent number of the Daily News, an English paper published in Rio de Janeiro, which has just been received here, says a Washington despatch. It appears that the Post Office Department intrusted fifty-two bags of mail to an English tramp steamer named Marahneuse and paid the captain of that steamer for the transportation of this mail to Rio. When the captain got to Pernambuco, which is only little more than half way, he disposed of the cargo of flour that he was carrying on speculation, and, having to go no further down the coast, he dumped the United States mail that he had contracted to carry to Rio upon the pier at Pernambuco, filled up his vessel with coffee and started for England. When the steamer Finance, of the United States' and Brazilian Mail Company, arrived in Pernambuco it found this large accumulation of mail that had been dropped there by the Marahneuse. The American steamer was under no obligations to touch it, as the Post Office Department had simply deprived the company, sailing under the American flag, of the transportation of this mail in order to give it to an English tramp; but the captain, as a matter of patriotism, took the mail on board, carried it to Rio, and not only did not receive one dollar's compensation for its transportation, but was fined by the Brazilian Government for not getting this mail there on time. An explanation was made, but the Brazilian authorities would not believe that the Government of the United States, having its own steamers sailing in that direction, would entrust its mail to irresponsible tramps to be thrown overboard whenever they got tired of it.

CARD.

BANGOR, April 26, 1886.

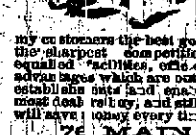

To John Littlefield & Co.:

Gentlemen—My attention has been called to the fact that a statement has been circulated to some extent to the effect that a certain drain constructed of CARBONIZED STONE DRAIN PIPE on the premises adjoining the St. Mary's Church, on Cedar street, during the season of 1885 was removed and found to be defective and broken to such an extent as to prevent the adoption of this kind of pipe in relaying the drain. This is to certify, that all such reports are without foundation in fact, and the only cause for removing a short portion of the drain in question was to replace it with a larger sized pipe than you were then making, in order to afford drainage for the church property. It was removed for no defect whatever and the remaining portion of the Carbonized Pipe drain is in constant use and working perfectly and I have since used some of this pipe.

MAINE METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Continuance of Sessions.

BRIDGTON, May 1. At the Maine Conference last evening the prayer meeting was the best ever known here, of the old fashioned, demonstrative and enthusiastic kind, by many clergymen and led by Rev. Charles Munger, followed by the Sunday school union anniversary, with an able, excellent and pleasing address by Rev. J. M. Freeman, D. D., of New York, on elements of success in Sunday school teaching, emphasizing the necessity of sympathy with scholars, thoroughness of preparation, tact, etc., illustrated with many apt anecdotes. The spacious Methodist Episcopal church was crowded to overflowing. Saturday forenoon there was a good prayer meeting led by Rev. E. T. Adams, then a business session; it is still lovely weather. At the afternoon session was the Woman's Foreign Missionary anniversary, with a very interesting address by Miss E. M. Yates, lately returned from missionary work in China, whither she went five years ago at the age of 23.

The church was so full that some could not get standing room. Miss Yates gave a review of her experience there and the grand work done by the Missionary Board and their representatives in the Celestial empire, together with pictures of the manners and customs and the work yet to be done for the cause of Christ. This was followed by the business report and a brief address by Mrs. C. M. Williams, of Bangor Conference, Secretary of the M. E. Society. Devotional exercises as usual. Rev. J. E. Cochrane, of Paris, represents the Maine Baptist State Convention. In the evening the church Extension Anniversary was held with an address by Rev. Dr. W. A. Spencer, of Philadelphia. Sunday the conference exercises will comprise love feast, sermons by Bishop Warren and Rev. Dr. Spencer, followed by ordinations of elders and missionary address by Rev. Dr. William Butler. The pulpits of Bridgton and Harrison will be supplied by clergymen of the Conference.

It is understood that the advance will not be granted.

EIGHT HOURS DAY.

The Great Labor Movement on Saturday.

A Widespread Action in the Large Cities.

The Demand Meets with General Opposition.

Reports from Various Places.

As Quiet as Sunday.

CHICAGO, May 1. The early morning hours of May 1st, the day set for the inauguration of the 8 hour day among the wage workers of Chicago, were characterized by a quietness which was a reminder of Sunday. In the manufacturing districts the 6 and 7 o'clock whistles were for the most part silent. The streets in the centers of industry were noticeable by reason of the absence of the usual hurrying crowds of workingmen with their lunch baskets and dinner pails in hand. Such streets as Market, Dearborn, Monroe and others on which heavy trucks usually are driven did not contain half as many teams as usual. Hundreds of factories were idle, some shut down on account of the strike and others closed to give their employers a holiday.

Not Satisfied with Their Own Terms.

This morning in the lumber district not a planing mill opened up. The manufacturers went into session at Felix Lang's office to consider the situation.

Seventy-five to 100 employes of the Equitable Gas and Fuel Company, engaged in building tanks on Archer avenue near Halstead street quit work this morning. The men were recently granted a raise from $1.60 to $1.75 for a ten hours day, all they asked, but this morning they quit because the company refused to allow the increase for eight hours work.

Not Laboring Under a Sense of Injustice.

The Times of to-day, reviewing the situation here in regard to the freight handlers' strike, says:

An inquiry among the men as to their grievances demonstrates that none of them are laboring under any sense of injustice either regarding their wages or treatment. Their movements seem to depend to a great extent upon what course of action will be taken elsewhere. They formed the idea thus: We want what other men are going to get. If eight hours is to be the rule, or if some of their comrades want to make a fight on that principle, perforce they must join in the stampede.

Competition a Factor in the Question.

The "Eight Hour Day," the official organ of the trade and labor assemblies of Chicago, says.

Competition is a factor in this question and the workingmen of Chicago have no right to exact short hours and high wages from their employes unless similar demands are made elsewhere. The object of the labor movement is to bring about uniformity of condition in wages, etc., so that no one employer has an undue advantage in the price of labor and conditions of employment over any other. However, we are not discouraged because there is not all smooth sailing. Questions of this kind are usually solved when the sea runs high, instead of during a dead calm. The difficulties must be met and disposed of.

Mass Meeting of Strikers.

A large procession of Bohemians and German, preceded by a band and carrying red flags, marched to the McCormick Reaper Works where some non-union men were working in the yards, who were frightened away. The procession moved west on Blue Island Avenue to Robey street where a mass meeting was held in a vacant lot. The crowd grew larger as it moved along and grew more boisterous. The police kept advised of its movements but up to noon no trouble had occurred. When the column in the lumber yards marched east on Blue Island Avenue and 22d street to Lumber street, it turned north, cheering and yelling as it passed each lumber yard. On reaching 19th street the procession turned west and proceeded to a lot on the corner of Center Avenue and 19th street.

Several saloons on the line of march displayed red flags. On arriving at the lot all that could get in crowded together in an atmosphere made stifling by fumes of tobacco. Speakers addressed the meeting in Bohemian, Polish, German and English. One speaker advocated the burning of every yard, the proprietor of which refused to concede to the demands of the men. Workmen in the freight department of the Michigan Central Railroad say they will resume work on Monday if 25 cents per day is added to their wages. At the Chicago and Alton freight house no business was done to-day. The Fort Wayne men all stopped work shortly before noon in obedience to the demands of the marching crowd of strikers. The North Western Railway men are still at work and it is understood will continue until Tuesday, when the company will return an answer.

Police Protection Sought.

About ten of the men employed in the Michigan Central yards refused to join the strike and about this time police protection was sought by the officials of the road. Lieutenant Laughlin and a squad of police soon appeared and succeeded in clearing the depot without using violence, although the men grumbled at being ordered back, claiming that their intentions were peaceable.

Twelve Thousand People in Meeting at New York.

NEW YORK, May 1. Twelve thousand people with banners and flags and transparencies of various kinds, assembled in Union Square this afternoon and lifted up their voices in no gentle manner in behalf of the eight hour movement. They were workingmen from the factories, shops and warehouses of the city, who had been summoned out by the respective trade organizations to listen to a speech upon a reduction of the hours of labor. It was a good natured crowd too. Policemen had little to do.

There seemed to be no end to the number of organizations which came pouring into the square. Some of the transparencies warned the public not to buy "scab" cigars or ride on the 3rd Avenue Railroad. Others bore the legend "Eight Hours shall constitute a day's labor." Some lit by lighted their pathway with flaring torches, Roman candles and electric lights, while others went along with nothing but the music of a bass drum to drive away the gloom. Two stands had been erected for speakers. There were many speakers but none of any eminence. The speeches were decidedly communistic. The meeting broke up without disturbance.

THE LABOR INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

Beginning their Work at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, May 1. The members of the Congressional Investigating Committee arose early this morning and after partaking of breakfast immediately proceeded to the Custom House. Sergeant-at-Arms Coombs had gone long before and perfected arrangements for the comfort of the committee and witnesses, the investigation being conducted in the Circuit Court chambers. There were present at the opening of the session Committeemen John Hayes and C. H. Layman, representing the Knights of Labor, and General Superintendent Kerrigan, Master Car Builder John Hodge, Master Mechanic Bartlett, General Attorney T. P. Portis, Superintendent E. L. Sibley and others for the railroad company. Before opening the session the committee held a consultation in the witness room adjoining the chamber and on account of the illness of Vice President Hoxie changed their plans by determining to examine the business men of the city.

A Mr. Simmons was the first witness. He said he had resided in St. Louis forty-one years. Chairman Curtin directed witness' attention to how long business had been suspended here, the extent of loss to manufacturing interests, mercantile business and all other branches of trade so far as he had personal knowledge. Mr. Simmons stated that the business prostration had been of a two-fold character. First—On this side of the river it was with country, which draws its supplies from us and business was suspended absolutely three or four weeks. Second—It affected trade in our city; not being able to get supplies from the east after the strike was inaugurated in East St. Louis, as we get our freight largely over the Vandalia line. At first it affected us in the distribution of our trade but afterwards it extended to and interfered with us getting our supplies. He said that the season had started in with very favorable prospects, more favorable than he had known there for the last five or six years and everything indicated an unusually successful and useful spring trade.

The wife sues for absolute divorce and alimony. The husband has filed a cross bill and has, it is alleged, put his property out of his hands. A. Prince; Sicilian hymn; benediction by Rev. Mr. Prince.

SALMON FISHING COMMENCED. Salmon fishing has already commenced in Bangor with most flattering results. Friday night Mr. F. W. Ayer visited the dam and with a fly rod landed a twenty-four pound salmon. This was a surprise to Mr. Ayer himself as well as to all the other fishermen here who had no idea that salmon would rise to a fly so early in the season. Saturday morning found Dr. Simmons, William Monroe and Mr. Ayer up the river again and their efforts were fully rewarded, as they landed three salmon weighing sixteen, eighteen and twenty pounds respectively. Yesterday William Little caught a nineteen pounder while fishing alone near the dam. These catches have almost set the sportsmen wild. They know that there are lots of salmon in the river and the fact that they will rise to a fly so early is a guarantee of some great fishing from now until the season closes. There are no salmon resorts on this side of the continent surpassing the Penobscot. A large number of Boston and New York sportsmen realizing this fact, will arrive here in a day or two to try their luck.

Maine State College 30—Maine Central Institute 4.

A large crowd witnessed the game of base ball at Orono, Saturday afternoon, between the Maine State College and Maine Central Institute nines. Many drove up from this city to attend the contest. The following were the members of the nines in their batting order:

M. S. C.—Merritt, l. f., Ray, s s., Burleigh, c. f., Small, p., Rogers, c., Elwell, 3b., McNally, r. f., Mason, 1b., Voss, 2b.

M. C. I.—L. A. Graves, p., Gilmore, 1b., Libby, c., Parks, 3b., Haskell, r. f., Lumsden, 2b., Burrows, c. f., Len Graves, s. s., Friend, l. f.

The game was characterized throughout by the heavy batting of the home nine. They also fielded well considering the fact that it was their first regular game. Merritt led the batting for the team with six hits and a total of seven out of eight times at bat.

The M. C. I. team could do nothing with Small's pitching but with the exception of the second and ninth innings when they got rattled fielded well. They are very active players and appear well on the field. The game shows that the M. S. C. nine are far stronger at the bat than last year and field equally as well. Their friends feel confident that they will make a good showing in the league this year although laboring under the disadvantage of having less practice than the other clubs. The following was the score by innings and the summary in Saturday's game:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
M. S. C.	0	8	1	0	3	2	2	2	11	—30
M. C. I.	1	0	0	0	3	0	0	1	0	— 4

Base hits—M. S. C., 22, total 27; M. C. I., 5, total, 6; errors, M. S. C., 11, M. C. I., 29. Struck out by Small, 15; by Graves, 2; passed balls, Rogers 4, Libby 3; bases on balls, M. S. C. 4; three base hit, Small, two base hits, Merritt, Ray, Mason, Lumsden; umpire, Harry Oxley.

TEACHERS' MEETING.

An Interesting Gathering at the High School Building Saturday Forenoon.

There was a large attendance at the teacher's meeting in the High School building Saturday forenoon and the exercises were of a most interesting and instructive nature. Miss Mary I. Snow the President presided. The meeting opened with singing "Jesus, Lover of my Soul." The records of the last meeting were read by the Secretary and approved. The address by Rev. T. E. Busfield, pastor of the First Baptist church upon "Industrial Education" followed. It was one of the very best talks ever given before the teachers, full of practical suggestions and interesting in the most marked degree.

He first considered his subject from a general point of view, noting its phases, etc. He thought that it would be difficult to introduce it here at present notwithstanding many might call it a wise move. He understood that the teachers were not too highly remunerated and that the course of study was already crowded. For these and other reasons that might be mentioned the majority of the persons interested would oppose the introduction of this department of education. But an industrial exhibition could be given at any time and that idea he would favor strongly. Have the work of the scholars on exhibition, charge an admission fee and there is no trouble but that the fair will be a success. He described at length an occasion of this kind in some other New England city and the teachers appeared much interested. In conclusion he again urged that some action of this kind might be taken and whatever was done he would pledge his hearty support.

After Mr. Busfield had finished Mrs. W. H. Gardner sang a solo in a splendid manner and was praised very highly for her effort. The matter of introducing music into the schools was freely discussed and the teachers were rather divided in their opinions as to its practicability. Dr. D. A. Robinson, one of the School Committee, was finally called upon and he vigorously opposed the scheme. He had seen its workings and he was of the opinion that the scholars derived no real benefit from the instruction. He also said that if the teachers decided to have music the writing teacher must be dispensed with. The general opinion was against the introduction of music after Dr. Robinson had finished speaking.

The question "Can the Dangers of Narcotics and Stimulants be taught without Text Books?" was the last one to be discussed. After general discussion the teachers thought that a text book was very desirable in such a course but nothing had yet been written that would fully supply the demand. Dr. Robinson also spoke upon this subject giving numerous valuable hints in a very plain manner.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Bangor "Mikado."

The Bangor Opera Company returned Saturday night from a most successful eastern tour. They stopped at Old Town and appeared before a good sized house Saturday evening, arriving in this city on a special train. At Old Town the people were enthusiastic and although the members of the company were very tired encores and responses were frequent. Miss Hunt was warmly greeted and delighted the audience with her singing and acting. Quite a party from this city went up to Old Town to witness the presentation. This morning the company leaves for Augusta, where they appear this evening. To-morrow afternoon and evening they will appear at the National Soldiers' Home, Togus. Wednesday night they close their season in this city. The sale of seats has already been large and without doubt a brilliant audience will witness the company's last performance. The electric lights, elegant stage settings and other features will be no small attractions.

The Dalys in Vacation.

The advance sale of seats for the Dalys in "Vacation" commences at the box office to-morrow morning. The Dalys are known by many of our people and give an irresistibly funny performance and they will doubtless crowd the Opera House Thursday and Friday nights. The Lawrence American says:

Twice this week the Opera House has been filled with an audience that laughed, roared and screamed. Last night the Dalys brought out decidedly the largest, who, before the curtain dropped on the first act fully realized the claim of the show bills, that "the chestnut tree had been cut down." Everybody laughed till they cried, took a fresh start and went off in another gale of merriment. The Dalys are actually irresistibly funny, and their comedy is one of the brightest satires ever produced.

Notes.

"Aphrodite" has proved so much of a success that Mr. Charles Atkinson proposes to put it up for a run in a New York theatre the coming summer.

Miss Margaret Mather, who has had a most successful tour since leaving New York, will close her season on May 15 at Albany. She will play a long engagement at the Union Square Theatre next season, where she will be seen in two or three parts new to New York.

The Chowder Dinner.

The chowder dinner given by the Ladies Auxiliary, in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association on Saturday, was a grand success in every particular, and the greatest credit is due the following ladies for the ample provisions and unique, delicious dinner provided, which gave such satisfaction to the one hundred and fifty or two hundred guests who enjoyed it. Mrs. E. D. Williams, chairman of committee, to whose indefatigable efforts much of the success is due; Mrs. Pickering who made the delicious chowder, Mrs. Dr. Jones the coffee. Mrs. Dowst, Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. French, Mrs. Davis and Miss Roberts, each being members of the committee on arrangements. The young ladies who waited on the tables were Misses Blaisdell, Thissell, Vivian Butler, May Roberts, Bridges, Smart, Webster, Ames and Barker, each of whom aided the committee in the most efficient manner.

The floral decorations were profuse, and the thanks of the ladies and Association are due Mr. F. H. Moses, the Bucksport florist, for a most liberal donation of choice green house flowers; also to Mrs. Bowler for beautiful flowers received her instrumentality. Mrs. J. L. Griffin and Miss Pickering rendered valuable assistance in the serving of the good things provided. The ladies are to be congratulated upon the success attending their efforts, and the Association upon having such a corps of friends whose practical interest is so often manifested. The ladies will clear some fifty dollars as the result of the day's work.

From Winn.

[Regular Correspondence of the Whig and Courier]

I learned Saturday that the post mortem examination of James Buckley of Prentiss, made by Dr. G. A. Lewis and Dr. P. Jones of Springfield, show that Buckley had a disease of the brain. That the fit of anger in which he was about to punish the boy and was crossed by his wife, produced a concussion of the brain and he fell over and died. The physicians say that he would not probably have lived over six months longer. There has been no coroner's inquest.

The third evening of the Catholic fair at Winn was held with a large audience in attendance. The Haynes Concert Company was warmly welcomed and listened to with much pleasure. The proceeds of the fair amounted to a little less than $70.

A Good Opening for a Young Man

—to keep shut—is his mouth, if he wishes to succeed in our profession, and the clam-like silence that our five expert razorists maintain while manipulating the implements of their trade, shows to the most casual observer that they recognize the truth of the fact. The great demand there is for shaves, shampoos, shears, &c., at their hands, shows also that the public appreciate the non-clamoring tonsorialist.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

STATE NEWS.

Aroostook.

The barn in Chapman, occupied by John M. Bean, was burned recently, and Mr. Bean lost nearly one hundred dollars worth of farm machinery and tools, says the Aroostook Herald.

The trustees of the North Aroostook Agricultural Society have appointed H. O. Perry, Esq. of Fort Fairfield, to be marshal at the cattle show and fair in September next.

In the month of February there were shipped from Presque Isle 93 car loads of freight; in March, 109 cars; during the first half of April, over 50 cars; making 251 in two and a half months.

Cumberland.

The new school house at Cumberland Mills will be ready for occupancy this summer. The cost of the building is $10,000.

Mr. Arthur L. Farnsworth has been appointed by Collector Anderson a weigher and gauger at the Portland Custom House in place of Major H. A. Shorey.

Mrs. H. T. Plummer, of Portland, lost a reticule containing a diamond pin, a pair of diamond earings, and $70 in bills, while out shopping, Thursday. She thinks they were stolen. The diamonds are said to be very valuable.

Thursday, Coroner Gould, of Portland, caused the body of Miss Eva Field, whose sudden death at West Falmouth, last Monday night, occasioned some excitement, to be exhumed, and a post mortem examination will be made by City Physician Smith, of Portland.

Kennebec.

Mr. S. L. Boardman, of the Home Farm, has sold his farm in Manchester to parties in Augusta for $3,000.

The other day, Mr. Glidden, of Litchfield, set fire to a brush heap of plowed land, which spread to an orchard where it destroyed between thirty and forty thriving young apple trees of about five years' growth. James Grey repeated the experiment on Monday, and burned over about forty acres of field and pasturage. Some of the farm buildings in the vicinity were saved with difficulty.

Dr. Chas. Rice, of Augusta, died suddenly at Litchfield, April 24th, at the residence of his uncle, Mr. H. W. Glidden. He suffered much from an old wound received in the army, and sometimes resorted to the use of morphine to relieve the pain. It is supposed that he took an overdose, from the effect of which he never rallied. His remains were forwarded to Washington, Me., where he formerly lived.

Piscataquis.

The trustees of the camp grounds in Foxcroft are to make additional and essential improvements on their grounds the coming season.

Three Road Machines were sold in one day by J. E. Hamilton, of Garland, to the towns of Abbot, Brownville and Lagrange. Several other towns in this county will purchase road machines this season.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Dover and Foxcroft Y. M. C. A., Saturday evening, the following officers were elected: C. H. Mansfield, President; Thomas Newman, Vice President; W. E. Whittemore, Secretary; Stephen L. Law, Treasurer.

Mr. H. R. True has a monster moose-head with horns in the process of mounting at his place at Dover. He states that this is one of the largest and finest specimens of its kind that he has ever had, with horns as near perfect as possible. He also has a head of a Caribou, wild fowl and birds sent to him to be mounted.

John Meservey, of Greenville, met with a very severe accident on last Thursday. In company with others he was at work on a boom in the cove when the end of a chain unfastened and flew against him, making him lose his footing and fall heavily upon his face on the ice. He was taken up unconscious with blood running from his nose and ears, and was carried to his home. It is feared that he is seriously injured internally.

The cyclone horror which devastated St. Cloud and Sauk Rapids last week, caused the death of Mrs. Davee, wife of Wm. A. Davee, formerly of Foxcroft. Young Davee resided at Sauk Rapids and was employed at a flouring mill. Just before the cyclone struck he had occasion to leave his work on an errand, and when he returned the mill was an entire wreck and every workman in it—seven in number we believe—instantly killed. He then started for his home some distance off, and on nearing the place, found that not a vestige of it remained. Being anxious as to the fate of his wife he made some inquiries of his neighbors of her whereabouts and was told where she was last seen. In searching for her he was horrified to find her near a tree, literally mangled, with both legs, ribs and arm broken. She was still alive, and he carefully removed her in his arms to the nearest house, where she breathed her last in a few minutes. Mrs. Davee had been away on that afternoon to give music lessons and was returning home when the cyclone struck. She was said to have been a very superior lady and her sudden death is a terrible blow to her husband and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Davee were married some time last fall, says the Piscataquis Observer.

Sagadahoc.

As soon as the tug Knickerbocker arrives in New York, the services of a diver will be procured and a search will be made for the supposed wreck of the schooner Charles H. Morse, of Bath, which probably caused the Oregon disaster. If it can be proved that the schooner had the right of way, the Cunard company will be sued for damages.

Somerset.

The farm buildings of Joseph G. Gower, five and a half miles from Skowhegan Village, were destroyed by fire, Friday morning. The fire caught from the chimney. Loss $1,500; insured for $800.

Waldo.

The Belfast Journal notes that the Cunard Company have extended thanks to the steamship Fulda and her captain for services rendered at the sinking of the Oregon, but have not recognized the services of the Belfast schooner Fannie A. Gorham.

Washington.

St. Stephen and Milltown, N. B., have determined to obtain a water supply from the company that is about to build the works for Calais. By having a system planned for three towns conjointly, the pipes can be so laid that a break in any main will not affect the supply, which will be never failing.

Officer French arrested and locked up a boy, Wednesday, says the Calais Times, for illegally catching young salmon at the Union Mills, and has a warrant for another boy guilty of a similar offence. The river was never so full of young salmon as this spring. They are about six inches long, and have started on their first trip to the sea. They take the bait eagerly, and the practice of fishing for them must be stopped.

Sons of Temperance.

The following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted by the public meeting held under the auspices of the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance of the State of Maine, in Chelsea, Maine, during the evening following their semi-annual session held in that place, April 28, 1886:

Whereas, our work in this grand cause is frequently being counteracted, and to a large extent thwarted, by the existence of the saloons, apothecary stores, hotels, eating houses, etc., where the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors is being carried on in some of the cities and large towns whose officers either through sympathy with the traffic, or some other cause, neglect or refuse to enforce the laws of the State against the traffic, thereby violating their oath of office. Therefore,

Resolved, That as citizens of the State we request the executive officers of the State to take more efficient measures toward the enforcement of the law against liquor selling in the same stringent manner as any other law upon our Statute books.

Resolved, That we welcome with gladness the news received from time to time by us, of the good work done in the various parts of the country, tending toward the annihilation of the foulest blot upon our national record, the liquor traffic, through the prohibitory amendments to the several State Constitutions.

Resolved, That we endorse the action proposed of late in Congress, relating to an examination of the effects of the liquor traffic upon the nation; and the making the result of such investigation, as compared with the effects of temperance and prohibition known to the country at large, meets with our earnest and hearty approval.

Resolved, That we condemn the idea of city and State liquor agencies as being necessary to the good of the people of the State, except upon actual need for "Medicinal and Mechanical purposes," of liquors, etc., prohibited by the law from being sold by any other party, for any other purpose.

Sick Headache.

GENTS:—I have been subject to Sick Headache for years, and have tried in vain, many advertised remedies and several physicians, but all to no purpose. At last, I tried your B. B. Bitters—without much faith, I admit—but to-day I can truly say, that after taking the third bottle I have not suffered from it. I recommend it to all my friends; several have been cured by it. My little grandson was permanently cured of Bilious-ness and Sick Headache, which were so severe as to cause convulsions. They have all ceased since he commenced the use of B. B. B.

MRS. B. C. BODLE,
Orange, Luzerne Co., Pa.

Dyspepsia.

GENTS:—I feel it my duty to say respecting Burdock Blood Bitters that it is the best medicine I ever took. I suffered two or three years from stomach troubles and dyspepsia as well as from liver and kidney complaint. I was not able to attend to my business. My wife was afflicted in much the same way. We read of your Bitters in the papers and made up our minds that we would try them. The result is my wife and I began to improve at once and I am now able to do more hard work than before in ten years. It relieved my kidney troubles as well. We both wish you, the makers of it Godspeed.

JOSEPH LANDON,

Headache and Biliousness.

GENTS:—I have been troubled for many years with serious Bilious disorders, so serious, indeed, that I seldom was free from the Headache. At night I was restless and nervous and seldom obtained refreshing sleep. A short time since I commenced the use of B. B. Bitters, and found immediate relief, my Headache disappearing and no more sleepless nights.
